Snell—Gibblings.

A very pleasant wedding was celebrated on Wednesday last at Alexandra hall when Harold J. Snell, the young and popular jeweller of Rosa avenue led to the altar Miss Mabel Gibblings, a charming young lady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Gibblings, of Torquay, England. Alexandra hall was nicely decorated for the occasion with red, white and blue streamers, Chinese lanterns and flags. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. B. Goodfield in the presence of a number of friends and relations of the contracting parties among whom were:

Everett Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Meeres, Billy Patchett, Fred Cochrane, Fred Hockey, Harold Patchett, Fred Anquetil, Mr. and Mrs. Slade, Mr. and Mrs. Hadley, Mr. Wiseman, Irwin Higgin, Jack Irwin, Miss Clarke, Miss Taylor, Mr. Brown, Miss Slade, Mr. and Mrs. Goodfield, Mr. Macintosh, Dick Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Krause, Mr. M. J. Snell, Cyril Clark, Fred Snell, Mrs. Macintosh, Mr. Cornett, L. J. Porter, Miss J. Good, Mr. P. Krause, Miss Good, Billy Krause, Mr. and Mrs. Krause, Lena Snell, Rosie Krause, Mr. Whit, Mr. Johnston, Mrs. H. W. Snell.

The bride was dressed in pale blue crepe-de-chene, trimmed with lace and guipure sprays with gold knots and wore a corolla hat with ostrich feathers, she also wore a gold bracelet set with amethyst, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mr. Bruno Krause (brother-in-law), gave the bride away and Master F. Snell acted as best man. The bride carried a charming bouquet of white flowers, and bridesmaid's pink, the gift of Joe Slade. At the close of the ceremony the "Wedding March" was effectively rendered by W. Morris. A splendid wedding feast was prepared to which all did ample justice. In the evening the hall was cleared for dancing and a most enjoyable time was spent by the jolly crowd. The happy couple left on Thursday morning for a week at Eckville with their relations followed by the best wishes of a large circle of friends and well wishers.

The bridegroom presented the bride with a gold bracelet set with amethyst, also a Singer sewing machine, and to the bridesmaid, Miss L. Snell a ring set with pearls and topaz, and to Miss Rosie Krause a ring set with a large pearl. Mr. and Mrs. Slade kindly presented the bride with a corolla hat with ostrich feathers, she also wore a gold bracelet set with amethyst, the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Annis, England, silver spoons, and forks and cutlery; Mrs. Snell, silver

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Moss desire to thank the people of Red Deer for their kindness and sympathy to them during their recent great affliction, more especially Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McKinnon and Mr. Heek Gaetz, for their kindness to their dear son while at the Memorial Hospital. They also desire to thank the matron, Miss Kingston, for her kindness. Signed R. B. MOSS, Adair, Wolsely, Saskatchewan.

B. C. Pioneer Dead.

One of the oldest of old-timers in the city of Victoria, in the person of J. E. McMillan, passed away two weeks ago to-day at 138 Cormorant street. He was 82 years of age, and until a little over five years ago had been connected with the public life of the city. For many years he was Editor of the Daily Colonist, was an ex-mayor of the city and sheriff of the city up to five years ago. He was closely connected with the early history of British Columbia being one of those who saw the great possibilities of a trans continental line across the Dominion in the early days. Deceased was uncle of J. A. Carswell of the News.

Big Turnips.

The turnip brought in by Councillor Stephenson recently has been badly beaten by Mrs. W. Cassels who sent a "peep" to this office last week, which speaks for itself. It measures 30 and one half inches in circumference. Can anybody beat this? We want to show what Alberta can do in the way of big vegetables and this is the way to do it. The person leaving the biggest turnip at this office by November 1st gets a year's subscription to the News.

Cutting General.

Fall wheat and barley cutting is quite general throughout the district. Mr. Jenkins cut a fine field of wheat last week. Mr. Jamieson, Mr. Lund and others have cut some grain. The wet weather retards the harvest some but the binder will be busy from now on until the harvest is secured. The yield is up to the average and sample first class.

Sporting Notes.

Interest in the base ball league seems to be on the wane for this season.

The Edmonton Cricketers are planning a tour at the end of the month playing Red Deer Aug. 31 and Pine Lake on Labor Day.

There is some talk of a baseball game between the Bankers vs. Professional men of the town in the near future. This should be a lively old game and could not help but be very interesting.

C. L. Wilson, of the Imperial Bank, who visited Calgary last week and took in the tennis tournament, was successful in defeating Dr. O'Sullivan in the singles by 6-4 and 6-0 in the first draw. In the second draw he defeated Campbell of Edmonton 7-5 and 6-3. In the third draw Baird of Calgary was too much for him defeating him by 10-8 and 7-3.

The Wheat Crop.

"The wheat crop will be far short of what it was last year, but it is probable that the farmers of the west will have quite as much money in their pockets as they did last year, for the reason that the wheat crop the world over has fallen off considerably and so the prices will go up."

This is the opinion of the western wheat prospects expressed by Mr. James Carruthers, who has just returned from a visit to Prince Rupert, the new Grand Trunk Pacific terminal.

Coming down to figures, Mr. Carruthers stated that the yield of wheat this year in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan would not pass 75,000,000 bushels as compared with 100,000,000 last year. The crop of the world, however, would be short fully 300,000,000 of the figures established in 1906.

Taking up the crop in detail, Mr. Carruthers said that west of Brandon he found the crop a good deal better than in the southeast. In fact, the crop is poor in southern Manitoba. The future depends to a great extent on the continuance of fine weather and the absence of frost, which is a frequent visitor in the month of August. There can be no doubt, he continued, as to the lateness of the crop and he did not expect cutting to any great extent before the first of September, and there will be a lot that will not fall before the fifteenth. But with fine weather the farmers will get from ten to fifteen cents more per bushel for their wheat than they did in 1906.

Threshing Started.

Fall wheat threshing has commenced in this district. On Tuesday, the C. S. Crest outfit started turning out golden grain for G. R. Daniel on the Silver farm. In several other parts of the south country the hum of the threshers is heard. E. C. Baines of the Columbia Flour Mill Co. has two carloads from G. R. Daniel which has been delivered the first on the local market.

The harvesters are now general and spring wheat will be ready to cut in a few days. There are very few poor yields and these are due to improper cultivation.—Lethbridge Herald.

FOUR BY-ELECTIONS FOR SEPTEMBER.

Ottawa Aug. 21.—It is probable that the by-elections to fill vacancies in the house of commons will be held about the middle of September, probably on the 18th or 19th. Nominations will be a week earlier. There are four vacancies. They are in St. John city and county, where the vacancy was caused by the death of Dr. A. A. Stockton, Northumberland caused by the death of Edward Cochrane, Wellington caused by the death of Dr. A. A. Stockton, London created by the resignation of Hon. Chas. Hyman.

It is probable that the final fixing of the date for the elections will be considered at a meeting of the government on Saturday and that the writs will go out early next week.

What a Kilowatt Hour will do.

The following list of services performed by a kilowatt-hour of electric current was compiled by an English engineer, says the Electrical World, and has value in advertising electricity. The list might be applied to other commodities:

- Saw 100 feet of timber. (deal.)
- Clean 5,000 knives.
- Keep your feet warm for five hours.
- Clean 75 pairs of boots.
- Cup 3 horses.
- Warm your curling tongs every day in the year for 3 minutes and twice on Sundays.
- Warm your shaving water every morning for a month.
- Give you 120 impressions on a Brunner royal printing machine.
- Run a mechanical sieve for 2 hours.
- Run an electric clock for ten years.
- Run 30 silk hats.
- Light 3,000 cigars.
- Knock 8 sacks of flour into dough.
- Fill and cork 250 pint bottles.
- Supply all the air required by an ordinary church organ for one service.
- Pump 100 gallons of water, or other liquid to a height of 25 feet.
- Run a plate polishing machine for 21 hours.
- Run an electric piano for 10 hours.
- Light 34 tons 75 feet in four minutes.
- Give you three Turkish light baths.
- Keep domestic irons in use for an hour.
- Keep your bed warm for 32 hours.
- Warm all the beds in the house by a warming pan, for a fortnight.
- Give you a fire in your bedroom for an hour while you are dressing or undressing.
- Boil 9 kettles, each holding 2 pints of water.
- Cook 15 chops in 15 minutes.
- Run a small ventilating fan for six hours.
- Keep your breakfast warm for five hours.
- Run a sewing machine for 21 hours.
- Carry your dinner upstairs every day for a week.
- Carry you thirty times from the bottom of the house to the top, eighty feet each journey.

CATTLE FOR CHICAGO.

Crocker and Pixley's train load of choice export cattle passed through Inland this week bound for the Chicago market. Crocker and Pixley are buyers of high grade beef cattle in the Pine Lake district and it is said that if these ranchers have secured the best combine which is said to have a grip on Alberta cattle. The stock will enter United States via Port of the Soo Line.—Innisfail Free Lanes.

Rice Paper.

Rice paper is not made from either rice or fine straw, but from a pithy plant found in China, Korea and Japan.

A Complex Calendar.

The Chinese have a singularly complicated calendar. Their cycles have sixty years, each year, month and day having its own name, and by combining these the day, month and year are designated.

Lemons.

In selecting lemons avoid those that seem light in weight and that have thick rinds that resist pressure. A juicy lemon is heavy and thin skinned and gives under the fingers when pressed. Lemons may be kept fresh a long time by wrapping them separately in tissue paper and keeping them in a cool place.

Watches.

Watches are adjusted to heat and cold by being allowed to stand first in a room heated with dry heat to 120 degrees and then in cold storage, being regulated after each treatment.

Chinese Beggars.

In the northern parts of China there are many villages which are almost deserted in winter, the inhabitants going south, where they live by begging. They form regular guilds and literally compel shopkeepers to help them by threatening to cause a riot in front of their stores, which Chinese merchants abhor.

Flying Birds.

Some idea of the terrific force with which a bird passes through the air may be gained through the fact that a common curlew flew right through a piece of plate glass a quarter of an inch thick at Turnberry lighthouse, Ayrshire, Scotland.

Dynamite.

Dynamite's explosive force is about eight times greater than that of gunpowder, and it has the peculiarity of being exerted in a downward direction.

Sweet Pea.

The sweet pea was first cultivated in Sicily about the year 1700, and the four original varieties two came from Sicily and two from Ceylon. The time to plant the sweet pea is as soon as the spring as the soil can be turned without clogging.

The Koran.

The Koran consists of 114 suras, or chapters. Each chapter begins, "In the name of the most merciful God."

Ireland.

The inhabitants of Ireland were called "Scots" long before Scotland acquired her present name. The first name under which Ireland was known was Jernia.

Where All Are Interested.

A significant instance of Scotch good sense is afforded by the signs on the chairs and benches in the Glasgow parks, "Protect your property," thus reminding each citizen that he is part owner and has interests which he must care for.

Felt Hats.

Felt hats were first made by a Swiss in Paris in 1404.

Tale Quarries.

One of the largest tale quarries in the world is in the St. Barthelemy mountain, Luzerne. The best rock is brilliantly white and has a greasy touch when powdered.

Good Advice to Follow.

Somebody gives the following anti-fetich advice: "Drink less, breathe more; eat less, chew more; ride less, walk more; clothe less, bathe more; worry less, work more; waste less, give more; write less, read more; preach less, practice more."

Gold Lace.

One ounce of gold will cover more than a hundred miles of silver wire used for making gold lace.

Frogs and Toads.

Frogs and toads have remarkably acute hearing. The slightest noise in the vicinity of a pond will at once attract the attention of the frogs and put them on their guard.

Birth Superstitions.

Among the Voges peasant children born at the new moon are supposed to have tongues better hung than others, while those born at the last quarter have better reasoning powers. A daughter born during the waxing moon is always precocious.

Meat and Moon Rays.

In hot countries meat exposed to the direct rays of the moon putrefies much more rapidly than if kept in the dark.

Herrings Help the Brain.

A medical authority on the virtues of various kinds of food declares that the herring gives the muscles elasticity, the body strength and the brain vigor and is not flesh forming.

Royal Titles.

The kings and queens of England were not always styled "his" or "her" majesty or after the pattern of that bestowed upon Victoria, "her most gracious majesty." Henry IV. was styled "his grace," Henry VI., "his most excellent grace," Edward IV., "high and mighty prince," Henry VII., "his grace and his majesty," Henry VIII., "his highness" and after "his majesty." Subsequently the English kings were styled "his sacred majesty."

Evarts.

Evarts is now an incorporated village. Its appearance has been greatly improved by a new sidewalk.

The hotel has changed hands. The busy little blacksmith Ed. Good, seems to have plenty to do as the ting of his hammer can be heard from early morn to late at night.

J. McKechnie's mill has lived on up the town for the past four weeks, as it has brought people to town who want lumber, as it can be bought at a reasonable price and much nearer home than Red Deer.

We see by the last official Gazette that Dick Blay has been gazetted a Justice of the Peace, and A. W. Walker has been gazetted an official auditor.

SIX HUNDRED MOORS KILLED BY TROOPS.

Tangier Aug. 21.—The Sultan's troops are reported to have again defeated a great force of the Knass tribesmen, in whose territory Kaid Sir Harry Maclean has been held captive. Six hundred Moors were killed and several of their villages were burned.

OUR TOWN—A PULL TOGETHER.

There is no room for doubt but that our town, with the united efforts of its enterprising citizens, can greatly increase its business and enhance the value of property. The high standard of morality that exists is inducing many to look this way with a view of locating. Our excellent schools is a feature greatly appreciated by the best people of this section, and are proving attractive features. As a trading and shipping point our town is already ahead of any place in this section of country. No place of its size in the country receives greater shipments of merchandise or sends out more goods. Our business houses are being transformed into beautiful blocks, and residences into modern dwellings and cottages.

Now as many are thinking and talking of coming here to locate, let all give them words of encouragement and hearty welcome to this goodly land of peace and abundance. Encourage those who are worthy whether they have capital or not. Labor is worth money. Those who have money will buy lots, build houses or remodel old ones. Let us work and stimulate every legitimate enterprise by giving it all the friendly encouragement we can, and unite our industry, intelligence and capital in a common cause for the good of our town.

Let us cultivate a public spirit and talk less and work more. Encourage our local authorities in making improvements. Speak up, speak well, talk encouragingly of our town and its bright prospects. It is these many little considerations that makes a town grow. Nature has showered upon us her choicest blessings, and with perfect unity and effort for the good of our common cause great will be the result.

PRACTICE WHAT YOU PREACH.

While we advise all business men to advertise, and believe that business success can be obtained in no other manner, we propose to practice what we preach, and therefore we advertise our paper as the best local paper in this great Red Deer district. It is a journal which may be taken with the most implicit confidence. Its pages will never be soiled by anything objectionable, and its advertising columns cannot be purchased for immoral announcements at any price. It is emphatically a local journal, designed to be a home history of the living present no movement for the benefit of society will be allowed to go unnoticed. No movement for the benefit of society will be allowed to pass unapproved, but it will heartily second the efforts of any individual or any class where their objects are for the improvement of the community financially and morally.

Any newspaper is the companion and friend of the family, but the local paper is one identified with the interests of the home. It is conducted by those whom you know. Its columns are filled with what is of special value to you. In its prosperity you have a vital interest, and to its prosperity you can best contribute by giving your support and patronage. It is your neighbor. Your duty is first to know your wants. Its interests are your interests. It is your friend, in preference to all others. No outside or foreign paper can possibly have claims upon you until your duty is discharged to the local journal. Of him who says he can get a city paper much larger than his own local journal for the same amount of money, we would inquire: Do the city papers say anything about your county, its climate, water, springs, healthfulness, soil, product, stock raising, mills, minerals, schools, churches, roads, bridges or other improvements? Nothing. Do they mention your public meetings, your town and country news, and the other thousand and one matters of interest which your home paper publishes with out pay? Not much. Do they ever say a word gratis, calculated to draw to your town or country any aid in bringing in immigrants and developing the wealth of your community? Not a line. And yet there are men who take such contracted views of the matter that unless they get as many square inches of reading matter in their own town paper as they do in a city paper, they think they are not getting the worth of their money. Your local newspaper works for its own town; does all it can to build up the place, advance the interest of its citizens, draw trade to the town put money into the pockets of the business men, and adds to the well being of all. Such a paper is entitled to the liberal patronage from the town and community it works for.

Our columns will prove of great value to advertisers. our subscription list enabling us to place the announcements for our business men before a greater number and a better class of readers than can any other medium and at much less expense, we shall give as much attention to this department as to the reading matter columns, ever striving to keep them fresh new and attractive. Our subscription rates will remain unchanged.

A local journal cannot compete with the steam presses and immense circulations of city dailies. Our jobbing department is provided with a line of type and ornaments suitable for all commercial printing, and we always keep on hand the best brands of paper stock etc. All orders will be filled expeditiously and satisfactorily, and at city prices. We invite a call, and promise to make any favors shown us, beneficial to our patrons.

CHANGE OF NAME.

The people of Medicine Hat are agitating for a change of name of their town. They say Medicine Hat means nothing and it leaves them open to be called names, such, no doubt, as mad hatters, etc. Pincher Creek is also crying out for a change of name. A nice sounding single word always sounds best, and no doubt they will get the change in time.

Travelling men that come to Red Deer remark that we have a very pretty town. Yes; we have a pretty town, and by the number of travelling men that come here regularly we know that we must have a business town. It's business to support your own town. Back up your own merchants, don't send away for your goods. There is hardly a day that there is not some kind of a traveller here looking for printing for outside firms. Did you ever stop to think Mr. Merchant how much money you send to outside printers that should go to supporting your own newspaper? Think it over.

"So long as the intelligent electors who put him there don't find fault, you needn't kick" said a citizen to us the other day when we spoke of the absence of our member in the east. But we do kick and kick vigorously it is our duty on behalf of Red Deer. We are losing ground daily because we have no one to look after our interests. There is no similar case in the whole of Alberta today where a member resides most of the time three thousand miles from his constituency.

If there is such a thing as nobility in Canada, it is that which follows the plow and turns up God's good soil for the maintenance of the people whom He created.

The public have little appreciation of the value of well conducted local newspapers. Their offices of beneficence to the community are so common that they are unnoted, but none the less no town or city can advance without its newspapers are in the forefront of its advancement. They are the life of the community. They must lead in every effort to invite capital, enlarge industries and enthuse the people in the use of their advantages.

"Turn that wrapping paper the other side out," said a lady in a dry goods store this morning as the clerk was putting up her purchase in a printed wrapping paper. "I don't want to be a walking advertisement to your store. I read the papers as all intelligent people ought to do, and I think in them is the place to advertise your business. Instead of asking your customers to carry your sign around with each purchase of goods, go and tell the people through the papers what you have to sell and how you sell it."

His Parable.

An old darkey, anxious to be a minister, went to be ordained. He was questioned thus:—"Can you write?" "No, sah!" "Read?" "No, sah!" "How do you know about the Bible?" "Ma niece read it to me!" "Know about the Commandments?" "No, sah!" "The 23rd Psalm?" "Nebber heard of him, sah!" "Know the Beatitudes?" "No, sah!" "Well, what part of the Bible do you like the best?" "Par'bles, sah!" "Can you give us one?" "Deed, yes, sah!" "Let us have it then." "Once when the Queen of Sheba was gwine down to Jerusalem she fell among thieves. First they passed her by on de oddah side, den dey come ovah an' dey say unto her, 'Fro down Jezabel' but she wouldn't fro her down; and again dey say unto her, 'Fro down Jezabel', but she wouldn't fro her down, and again they say unto her for de first time and last time, for 'I ain't gwine to ax yo no mo.' 'Fro down Jezabel' and dey fro'd her down for seventy times and seven, till de remains were 'leven baskets; and I say unto yo, whose wife was she at de resurrection?"—"Bystander."

"It is marvelous," he answered indifferently, "it is nothing to her nor to me. For myself I defeat the English officers, but like you, sir, I simply do as I am bid. Give me the gold and I will wish you good-night."
The gold, English gold! Pest on it! The vivandiere and he had thought of everything but that. The perspiration swelled on his forehead. He grasped his sword and took a step towards the doorway.

"It was given no gold," he said brusquely and waited with drawn breath. She shrugged her shoulders and astonished him by kneeling down and taking up by the belt. "It is like English officers to buy secrets and not try for them."

"You are unjust to the English," he protested. Ah! that surely was a stroke of genius.

"I know them, the English," she said without looking round.

Dead silence broken only by the wheezy puffs of the bellows. Pity, fear, astonishment, and a burning curiosity wreathed in Andre's features. Was this masked girl flesh and blood or a devil in human form?

"Do you want the papers back?" he demanded.

"They are not mine to ask," he said to give them to you, keep them."

The icy contempt in her voice struck him. If it had not been for Franco he would have flung them at her and then strangled her on the spot.

"Before I wish you good-night," he said after a pause, "will you do me the honor to remove your mask?"

"Why?" She wheeled slowly, still on her knees.

"Why does even an English officer ask a woman to do such a thing?"

She rose and came toward him. "I will take off my mask with pleasure," she said, "if you, sir, will do me the honor to take off your cloak and share my supper."

Andre could not check a start. Had she guessed the truth or was this a bold coquetry?

"Permit me," she said softly, and before he could utter a word she had wrenched his cloak around. "Ah!" she cried, "I thought so. A hero in the uniform of a Chevalier de la Garde with a naked sword and I—a woman—defenceless, alone. You an English officer—you—"

She had slipped from his side. The table with the smoking lantern was between them.

"Monsieur, le vicomte de Nercas," she whispered, "any woman can make a fool of you."

Andre slammed the door behind him. "Traitor," he swore. "Your last hour has come."

"She came at him calmly. 'Listen,' she said, 'listen! Monsieur Spy, to-morrow you will be shot by the English—and the papers—' she laughed—'will still belong to the vicomte de Nercas.'"

Andre halted sharply. What was that outside? Home heard in the clearing—two horses! The English officers were here and he was trapped, trapped, as God lived, by a woman who flouted his uniform and him.

"You will not escape," he said with set teeth, "and I have the papers."

"Food," she said, "he flicked her cloak in his face."

A loud rapping on the outer door.

"Enter," she called. "Enter, Captain Statham, the door is not bolted."

Captain Statham, who had met Andre and not in the salon of a woman of pleasure. Andre laughed aloud.

The latch was being lifted. It was now or never. Twisting his head round his left arm as the Spaniard does in a duel with knives, in a trice Andre, sword in hand, was over the door with the spring of a cat. When he had pushed the traitress he would deal with Captain Statham. But the woman was too quick for him. The legs of the table met him in the stomach and sent him staggering back. "What is this stinking pain he could hear her soft laugh as she staggered back. "What is this?" she asked, "what is this?"

She had thrust the lamp to the floor and was past him, missing his sword point by just half an inch. The blade glistened in the woodwork. Half-dazed, he grabbed at her mask—it came off—but she was gone.

"We shall meet again," she called, "your business and mine I hope does not end here." A spurt of flame shot into the air. The oil of the exploded lamp had set the dry, rotten timbers ablaze and the kitchen was alight.

Quick as thought Andre turned himself after the girl. She had doubled to the right—there was another door as he guessed leading to the kitchen. He rushed through it and after her, snatching for two seconds he held her back with a curse against the wall. She had escaped.

And now the flame from the kitchen revealed Captain Statham standing in the front doorway, stupefied, his eyes glaring like a madman's. With a cry he flung himself on Andre. The papers in his left arm—Andre was stabbed—but this was no moment for vengeance, only for flight, for on his trumpet rang, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

Andre, a drum, a drum, a drum.

reviving song "Monsieur de Nercas" up:

"Et son amour ridicule,
A fait rire tout Paris, ris ris."

"I made a promise," dropped the soothing words in his ear, "but Monsieur de Nercas must be kept in the secret to Mousigneur and the King. You remember, I beg, there is nothing—nothing—will do for you if I can serve you, for I am grateful—more grateful than a woman can say."

A cushion was slipped under his feet. Two soft arms enfolded him for a brief second. "The lips, vicomte," came the caressing chant—"the lips that a king has kissed salute you." His head rested on her breast. "Adieu!" She had vanished and his numb senses obeyed again an enchanted oblivion.

The Loire floated at his feet, the autumn trees rustled a perfect pleasantness and peace, and a dense standing, beneath the carved mantelpiece with "Dieu le Vengeur" in a scroll of gold above her head in her "forgiving arms."

And what was that? Hoarse voices and cries, the rush of feet, of horses, of wagons, and of guns, the rattle of the drums, the challenge of trumpets.

SAILOR'S PRACTICAL JOKE.

How Taffy Introduced Himself to His Superior Officer.

A young Carmarthenshire farm laborer, after a quarrel with his parents, made his way to Swansea, where he enlisted for the royal navy. He was a simple and innocent country lad as ever delighted the hearts of the old sailors, and he had not been many hours aboard before his new friends devised a plan to victimize him.

One of them snatched the gold-locked cocked hat and frock coat of an officer from his cabin, the door of which, being wide open, disclosed the glittering uniform reposing on a chair. The borrower of the gaudy dress took it to the unsuspecting Welsh lad, and assuming the authoritative tones of a petty officer, ordered the recruit to dress himself in the officer's clothes.

"It's your full dress uniform," said the jovial grocer, "you must show yourself to the captain in it in ten minutes, so look alive. Yes, it's two minutes more for you, but the captain's a stickler for a good fit, and will surely order you to take it, it is a splendid outfit."

Utterly unsuspecting in his abysmal ignorance of the service, Taffy proudly donned the long-tailed coat, the gold-locked trousers, and cocked hat. Instead of the accompanying sword, he carried a stick, and he carried a stick, and he carried a stick.

All you've got to do, said the jovial grocer, "is to walk up to the captain on the quarter-deck, and tell him you're a sailor, and he'll be good to you."

They accompanied Taffy to the bottom of the hatchway and then retired to their quarters, leaving the sailor in the lurch.

The captain, pacing the quarter-deck, was at the same time the rest of the officers and men who witnessed the apparition, struck speechless by the sight of the recruit in an officer's full dress, with a rifle and sword, and a stick in his hand.

A. B. Chapman who has been in the employ of J. McKennie for some time while on his way home stopped off at the Red Deer Memorial Hospital and had an operation performed on his feet the trouble is said to have been caused by the effect of the wreck he was in two years ago this fall which happened east of Red Deer.

The New C. P. R. water tank is now complete with the exception of piping. The capacity is 50,000 gallons, and it is frost proof, there being a stove underneath to keep it from freezing and air chambers surrounding it and a pipe through it. Altogether the tank is up to date in every particular.

Among the new business men in town is W. T. Coote, who has opened a boot and shoe store on Ross Avenue, in the Postill block east of F. H. Tallman's hardware store. Mr. Coote comes to town well recommended having had a number of years experience in the boot and shoe business in Toronto. He is agent for the Slater shoes.

The criminal assault case against Thomas Moran a section man on the C. P. R. was tried on Wednesday last before Justices Wallace and Fulmer. The court sat until 12 o'clock Wednesday night and accused was committed to stand his trial, bail being refused. J. L. Crawford for crown, J. C. Moore for defence.

Borden Coming

AT RED DEER OCT. 7th.

Word has been received that Hon. R. L. Borden will stop at Red Deer during his western tour and deliver an address here. The date fixed for his visit is Monday, Oct. 7th, of which full particulars will be given later on.

Board of Trade Pamphlet.

The board of Trade has had printed at the News office a six page circular for general circulation throughout the middle and western States, describing the Red Deer district, its natural resources, requirements, and considerable information regarding crops, lands, soils and other questions generally asked by a prospective settler. An edition of ten thousand copies were printed, the matter being prepared by J. R. Cowell, assisted by the Executive of the Board of Trade. Any person wishing a few circulars to send to friends can have same by applying to M. A. Munro secretary of the Board. The Board of Trade intends later to issue a pamphlet with views illustrating Red Deer along the lines of the one printed last year, but up to date.

Lesterville.

The heavy rain of a week ago was followed here last Monday by a keen frost, in one instance ice being noticed over six inches in length. This frost has unfortunately stopped the growth and spoilt the crop of late planted potatoes but some worn earlier are already a fair crop which the frost has not materially injured.

Mr. West, of Lily Dell, has a fine garden, probably the best in the district and he is now digging very nice potatoes. He says he but we regret to say Mr. West has been on the sick list for some months and Mrs. West has had to add the function of chief gardener to her other cares and the result certainly does her great credit.

The opening of the duck shooting season the other day did not find the sloughs too well stocked with ducks. They are not quite so plentiful as last year though they appear to be in great numbers on their journey north in May. Other game is also scarce though one good covey of chicken has been noted.

He says he but we regret to say Mr. West has been on the sick list for some months and Mrs. West has had to add the function of chief gardener to her other cares and the result certainly does her great credit.

The following donations have been made to the memorial hospital since our last report: Mrs. Usherwood, lettuce; Mr. Shute, cut flowers; Mr. Brumpton fresh fish and ducks; Mrs. Tallman, raspberries and new potatoes; Misses A. and E. McKinnon, flowers; Mrs. Brumpton, peas and cauliflower; Mrs. Markland, carrots and lettuce; Mrs. Cole, pail currants and peas; Mr. J. Wright, cut flowers; Lenore and Evelyn Brumpton, flowers; Mrs. Bryan, potatoes currants and beets.

Birth.

At Hillsdown, on the 21st inst., to Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Spires, a daughter.

Summer Carnival.

The grand carnival of amusement by the great Nat. Reiss Carnival Company, opens at Red Deer to-morrow the 29th at 7 p.m. and will be in town for three days. There is nothing this great show resembles so much as Coney Island. There are all kinds of shows and amusements. Without doubt for real innocent fun there has never been anything like it in Red Deer. Two fine bands, a big open wheel, a splendid free exhibition, a first class old style single ring circus and a dozen attractions in the way of glass blowers, moving pictures, performing dogs, merry-go-rounds, peep-shows and many other features. The Woodmen of the West will see that everything is fair and above board and as the whole show is under their management no better guarantee can be given that the show will be clean, and no crooked work will be tolerated.

Farmers!

We are again obliged to ask for your co-operation. It's easily given, and costs nothing. It's simply this: You have ordered a Binder from us; you know you will require that Binder, then why not call for same as soon as possible, in order that we may help you set it up. We cannot be all over the district at once. There is no need to wait until your crop is ripe, for we will demonstrate the running of our Binders in the heaviest green grain you can produce. So why not take delivery of your Binder the first day you are unable to go on the hay field; it will not cost you one dollar more, but it will give us a chance to set it up for you before the fall rush. Just figure this out, and you will admit that it's only reasonable that we cannot set up the large number of Binders sold by us in the last week preceding harvest.

Thanking you in anticipation of your hearty co-operation in this matter.
